When he arrived home that evening, his wife ran to the beach to meet him.
'Have you brought me some mermaid fruit?' she asked excitedly. She was very disappointed when he told her that he didn't have any with him.
'But you promised me you would find some!' she said.
'I'm sorry!' he said 'but my boat was full of fish and it was getting dark so I had to come home immediately. I promise I will bring you some tomorrow.'
The next day, early in the morning, the fisherman got up early, had some breakfast and went down to the sea. Once again his wife reminded him about the promise to bring some mermaid fruit from Duyong Island.
'Of course, I won't forget this time,' he promised, and set sail in his boat.
The sea was very calm, almost like a mirror, as he reached the place where he threw his net into the sea. But today he was not so lucky. Each time he pulled in his net, it was almost empty.
'Oh dear,' he thought, 'I wonder where all the fish have gone today.'
He spent a long time in his usual place but he didn't catch many fish. After a few hours he decided to try a different place, about five kilometers away. When he threw his net into the sea it wasn't long before it filled up. This happened a few times and by early evening he had enough fish so he decided to return to the shore.

I said I would meet my friends at the park for a game of football. I set off from home just after breakfast. I was expecting just a few people to come for the game but when I got there I was surprised to see a big crowd of people there. They were all standing in a circle on the football field. The first person I recognized was my friend Steve. When he saw me he cried 'Hey, Alan, come over here. Take a look at this!' When I got there, I saw that all the people were looking at a long snake. 'Don't worry,' said Steve, 'it's not dangerous. It can't harm you. But we've changed our mind about the football game; we've decided not to play here after all!' 'OK,' I said, still watching the snake. 'I'll go home and finish my Maths homework then. Take care of yourself. See you at school tomorrow.'

GAPFILL 1 Mixed Verbs

The next morning the fisherman got ready as usual and his wife helped him put everything on the boat. Then she said:

‘Husband, every day you forget to bring me mermaid fruit from Duyong Island so today I am going with you in the boat and we will find mermaid fruit together, you and I.’

The fisherman was very surprised at this and said to her:

‘But you are expecting a baby! It is hard work on the boat. Perhaps it is not good for our baby! It may be dangerous.’

‘Don’t worry about me!’ she said, ‘and don’t worry about my baby. I will take care of everything as soon as we find some mermaid fruit.’

The fisherman wasn’t happy but he knew his wife would not change her mind. They set off and sailed towards Duyong Island. When they reached the usual place on the sea, the fisherman wanted to throw his net into the sea to catch some fish but his wife said:

‘No! Today there will be no fishing. We will go to Duyong Island immediately and find some mermaid fruit. You will not forget your promise today!’

The fisherman knew she would not change her mind so he sailed to Duyong Island. When they reached the island, he jumped out of the boat into the water and pulled the boat onto the sand. Then they followed a small stream for a few minutes until they saw a large tree with lots of fruit hanging from its branches.

‘I don’t know this tree,’ said the fisherman. ‘I have never seen fruit like this in all my life.’

‘This must be the mermaid fruit!’ cried the wife excitedly. ‘Climb up and get me some fruit!’

GAPFILL 1 Mixed Verbs

When the fisherman bit into the fruit he was surprised how delicious the flesh tasted.

'This really must be magic fruit,' he thought to himself, and he started to make his wish.

'I want to catch a big fish, the biggest fish in the world. Fish...fish...fish!'

At exactly the same time, of course, the fisherman's wife made her wish.

'I want a strong, healthy baby. Baby...baby...baby!'

The mermaid fruit was a little confused by this. This was the first time that people had made two wishes on one day and it didn't know what to do. In the end, it decided to join their wishes together.

As soon as the wife had eaten her fruit she began to feel something moving inside her stomach.

'Husband,' she cried, 'help me! Our baby is coming!'

After a few minutes a strong, healthy little girl was born. She was really beautiful! But there was something about her, something different. When the fisherman and his wife looked closely at their beautiful little daughter, they saw that in place of strong, healthy legs, she had a strong, healthy tail, very much like the tail of a fish. The tail moved from one side to the other. What's more, the tail was covered in scales, just like a fish. So, you see, in a way they both got what they had wished for!

As the baby girl moved about, she slipped from her mother's arms and fell into the fresh water of the stream. Her parents cried out in fear as their daughter fell into the water. But after a few minutes she appeared again. She was swimming in the stream, just like a fish!
